NEW AMC GREETING APPROVED IMPLEMENTATION TO BEGIN IN THE YEAR 2000

Albania (WfN) Administrators today announced that the ALBANIAN MEDICAL COLLEGE has adopted a new official greeting (pictured below). This greeting has been adopted to improve the efficiency of AMC drones errr, workers. According to AMC Administrators, employees will no longer need to exchange pleasantries upon meeting each other in the hallways. Rather the employees need only salute each other. Initially this salute was to be accompanied by a sharp click of the heels. However, this latter part of the salute was dropped as too many employees were saying "I want to go home". As AMC has no plans to relocate nor establish a satellite clinic in Kansas, this latter component of the greeting has been temporarily shelved.

The timing of implementation is, according to "informed sources", part of the now fabled Y2K problem. According to sources deep within the Department (soon to be Theme) of Information Systems, the entire Y2K problem arises from too much academic freedom. Implementation of this greeting has been designated as one component of the Y2K cure. While the costs of the greeting replacement will likely be high (estimated cost to remove the larynx of repeated offenders is approximately $37,000), Information Systems states "... it will be well worth it as it will prevent the undesired exchange of information!"

However, the salute has raised some eyebrows within the Faculty Senate. Speaking in confidentiality, one Senate member exclaimed, "The salute is too rigorous! I can't raise my arm that far." Administration officials stated that they would address this problem and when contacted again by the WfN, the aforementioned faculty refused further comment -- in large part due to his recent throat surgery.

AMC Administrators are from Mars

AMC Faculty are from Earth

Albania (WHN) Dr. Karl Sagen of the AMC Astrophysics Department (and AMC Women's Basketball Coach) has recently uncovered startling new facts about the 'Administrators' of the Albanian Medical College. Using secret cameras sequestered in the "Executive Washroom" (but not the ones in the women's locker room) Dr. Sagen has discovered that these outwardly humanoid administrators are in actuality alien creatures. Preliminary evidence gathered by Dr. Sagen suggest these "beasts" originate from the planet Mars. Interestingly these creatures gain their humanoid appearance in a manner analogous to that recently portrayed in the hit movie "MEN IN BLACK" in that the alien literally sucks the life blood out of a humanoid and then wears the skin as a mere suit to cover the blob-like green Martian. Indeed, based on his findings, Dr. Sagen suggests that "the "MEN IN BLACK" is actually a documentary film and should be taken much more seriously with regards to the presence of extraterrestrials on Earth."

Dr. Sagen's findings also explain much about the current AMC environment. Mars, being much further from the Sun, is a cold and hostile environment for humans. Despite a previous theory about the 'environmental' changes noted at AMC (see "AMC-- Hell Reincarnate?") the humanoid looking creatures infiltrating AMC are not actually "agents of Satan". Rather, according to some of the more benevolent -but perhaps naive- Albanian scientists, the cold hearted Martian creatures are merely trying to co-habitate with the indigenous Albanian humanoids. However, the majority of Albanian scientists agree that these alien creatures are trying to transform Albania such that it resembles the cold, harsh, and distant planet that these creatures have recently fled. Indeed, evidence gathered by Dr. Sagen's suggests that the Mars invaders (i.e., "Administrators") are indeed attempting to terraform the Albanian Medical College to approximate living conditions on Mars. According to Dr. Sagen, the current cold weather in Albania is solely due to the Aliens and explains the loss of the Albanian coconut tree and squirrel monkey.

This one looks tasty and its well dressed! I'll take it!
